GERMAN APOLOGIES.

Fear of Spain and Sweden.

London, May 23.

Germany has apologised to Spain for the recent violation in Spanish territorial waters, and has promised to respect Spanish rights in future.

Germany is also attempting to conciliate Sweden, asserting that the torpedoing of the three Swedish ships was accidental.

The Norwegian Shipping Gazette emphasises that German respectfulness to Spain and Sweden is due to the fact that there is some risk where they are concerned, but Germany has not apologised for the sinking of Norwegian ships, or for the killing of a hundred Norwegian sailors.

THE WESTERN FRONT.

A Successful British Raid.

London, May 22.

Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reports:—We successfully raided trenches to the east of Vermelles. There is nothing to report on the rest of the front.

Rheims Again Bombarded.

London, May 23.

A French communique states:—There has been violent artillery firing at Valenciennes and on the California plateau. Rheims was heavily bombarded.

AERIAL COMMUNICATIONS.

A Post-War Enquiry.

London, May 22.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Baird announced that Lord Northcliffe had been appointed Chairman of a Committee to enquire into aerial civil communication after the war.

The Committee includes Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, representing the India Office; Sir Thomas Mackenzie, representing New Zealand; and the Hon. W. P. Schreiner, High Commissioner for South Africa. It is hoped that Canada and Australia will nominate representatives.

A STRIKE POSTPONED.

London, May 22.

Owing to the intervention of Sir George Asquith, the threatened strike of cotton weavers, mentioned on the 14th inst., has been postponed for a fortnight after Whitsuntide.

The employers have made proposals for a settlement, which will be submitted to the workers' representatives.

R.G.S. MEMBERS' ACTIVITIES.

London, May 22.

At the annual meeting of the Royal Geographical Society, the President said he had received strange tales of the doings of some of their most distinguished travellers in the East. For instance, one was engaged on a political mission almost within sight of Mecca. Another, as geographer and archaeologist, directed from an aeroplane the bombardment of an enemy depot in Asia Minor, in order that a Greek Temple might not be damaged. Another, a lady, was engaged in strenuous staff work in Mesopotamia.

ALLIED PURCHASES IN AMERICA.

London, May 22.

Reuter's correspondent at New York states that the Allies' purchases will in future be made through a Commission supervised by the Government, instead of through Messrs. Morgan's, thus saving the latter's commission.

THE ITALIAN FRONT.

Enemy Attacks Fail.

London, May 23.

An Italian official message says:—We repulsed violent raids at Cavenno Pass, Piombino Bridge and Giamella Valley, and heavily drove back attacks at Monte Dossalto and Zugno.

There were also local attacks in Posina Valley, on the Asiago Plateau and at Carnia.

Repeated enemy attempts eastward of Gorizia failed to drive us from the hill to the south of Grazigna.

Our airships bombed the enemy's rear lines at Vogriscia.

GENERAL SMUTS' SPEECH.

To be Circulated Broadcast.

London, May 23.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Yeo asked whether, in view of its importance, the speech of General Smuts in the House of Commons, at the luncheon on May 15, would be reprinted and published and distributed to the Allies and neutrals.

Lord Robert Cecil replied that the speech had been reprinted in English as a pamphlet for distribution in the British Empire and America. Translations were in the course of preparation for the Allies and neutrals.

Mr. Yeo suggested that the speech should be circulated in the schools, as it would have a good effect on the young life of the nation.

U.S. AND THE WAR.

The Tonnage Question.

Washington, May 22.

Mr. Balfour discussed the shipping problems with the United States Shipping Board. British experts had worked out the amount of tonnage necessary to supply the Allies. The Board drafted a programme accordingly.

The Italian mission has arrived in America.

New War Ministries.

London, May 22.

Telegrams from New York state that President Wilson has decided to create three new Ministries—Food, Munitions and Transportation.

A Threat.

London, May 22.

"The Times" Buenos Aires correspondent says that the United States has threatened to restrict the export of coal unless actual scarcity justifies the Argentine's embargo on wheat exports.

IN THE WEST.

A Triumph for British Guns.

London, May 22.

The destruction of the Hindenburg line, mentioned by Field Marshal Haig, was a triumph for British guns. Correspondents describe the line as vanishing like smoke before a hurricane bombardment. Concrete pits, well-deep heavily timbered dugouts, riveted supports and all the enemy's laboriously constructed devices were completely blown away. French experts are elated at the fact that the British, in less than a month, have cracked a barrier which took a year to build, and upon which hinge all future enemy manoeuvres; and they state that already there are signs of the Germans' preparing to retreat from their new system, which is the only alternative to decisive defeat if they remain; namely, the system of switch trenches zigzagging to rallying points in the rear. The unhappy Boche in fact must work feverishly night and day perfecting these tunnel-like switches or be massacred on his line.

Successful British Raids.

London, May 22.

Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reports:—We carried out successful raids north-east of Epéhy and north of Arras. German artillery was active at night east of Bullecourt and south of the Arras-Cambrai road and west of Lens. We destroyed a large ammunition dump north-east of Queant, the explosion being felt at great distances to our rear.

French Repulse Enemy Attacks.

London, May 22.

A French communique states:—Enemy attacks on the positions we captured yesterday north of Mont Cornillet, Casque, and Teton were everywhere repulsed with losses. We took a thousand and wounded prisoners on May 20, including twenty-eight officers. There was a violent artillery struggle on the Vaucelle plateau.

ANOTHER BRAZILIAN STEAMER SUNK.

Paris, May 22.

A submarine has sunk the Brazilian steamer Tajuca off Brittany. Some of the crew were saved.

BRAZIL AND THE GERMANS.

The President's Proposal.

Rio de Janeiro, May 22.

The President has proposed to Parliament that the decree announcing Brazil's neutrality be revoked. It is expected that this will be followed by Brazil's entering the war on the side of the Allies.

Brazil's Traditional Policy.

Rio de Janeiro, May 22.

The President's message asks for a revocation of the neutrality decree "in consideration of the fact that the United States forms an integral part of the American Union, and the traditional policy of Brazil has always been regulated in perfect unity with the United States; also in consideration of the wishes of the great majority of Brazilians."

Acceptance by Congress.

New York, May 22.

The Brazilian Congress has accepted the President's recommendation to revoke neutrality.

ALLIED SUBJECTS FOR BRITISH ARMY.

London, May 22.

In the House of Commons, Lord Robert Cecil stated that conversations were proceeding with the Allied Governments on the question of incorporation of Allied subjects in Britain in the British army.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

Lord Curzon's Appeal.

London, May 22.

Continuing his speech in the House of Lords, Lord Curzon said:—

When the war is over and we have commenced the task of reconstructing, which will be not less difficult and anxious than the conduct of the war itself, who can doubt that a contented Ireland will be an asset of immeasurable value to a future settlement of the interests of the British Empire? Who can doubt that Great Britain will be a more powerful figure at the Peace Conference if she can speak with the united voice of all her sons?

Might not such a consummation pave the way for that her sons? Might not such a consummation pave the way for that world co-operation of the "three greatest liberty-loving nations of the earth—France, the United States and ourselves, upon whose close communion and interdependence of action he believed the future of civilisation to a large extent depended.

The settlement of the Irish question had emerged as a world factor of capital importance that might affect the fortunes of Great Britain in the war and the destinies of mankind for generations. If an effort was to be made, none could dispute that it should be made without delay. Since the beginning of the war the situation in Ireland had grown not better but worse and if left alone it might grow even worse. In that case if we faltered or drifted not merely would we parade our bankrupt statesmanship before the world but we would have earned the deserved condemnation of posterity.

Lord Curzon, referred to the importance of the proposals in the first part of Mr. Lloyd George's letter and said that though they had momentarily disappeared they might re-emerge later in perhaps a more acceptable form.

Lord Curzon then described precedents for the Convention and its constitution in similar terms to those used by the Premier and concluded by saying that it was beyond measure desirable that representatives of all those bodies and parties should attend. It would be a national misfortune if any stood aloof and grave responsibility would rest upon any of those bodies who elected to abstain. Many of their lordships had carried weight of authority in Ireland and he prayed them to use their influence to dissuade the people from such an unfortunate and disastrous course as to abstain. The tide was running fast in Ireland and he prayed God that on this occasion they might not miss it. (Cheers.)

Opinions in the Lords.

In the House of Lords, Lord Midleton said that whatever was done they must secure a large and loyal element in the Convention and make it clear that the loyal element should have an adequate share in the Government.

Lord Londonderry, in the course of a maiden speech, said that those upholding the cause on the battlefield would ask why this settlement and plan should be produced during their absence, but "strong" though his hereditary convictions were, he would welcome any argument which might furnish a solution of the problem.

Lord Selbourne agreed with Lord Lansdowne that it was impossible to return to the past. This was no longer a question for the United Kingdom but for the Empire.

Lord Beresford hoped that Irishmen in convention would settle the Irish question, which Englishmen had never been able to do.

Press Opinions.

London, May 22.

The newspapers generally welcome the Convention, but the comments as to the outcome are cautious. None are too hopeful of success. It is pointed out that although the speeches in Parliament showed a remarkable change in the atmosphere, the crux of the difficulty, namely the exclusion of North-east Ulster remains. The strongest hope is based on the attitude of Lord Lansdowne and Lord Curzon. The latter's speech is regarded as of better augury than that of Sir John Lonsdale.

The "Daily Telegraph" interprets the general feeling in Parliament as recognising that the Convention if held might easily fail, but says that success is not precluded and the experiment ought to be made with good will.

The "Daily Chronicle" says that if the Convention is convened on the crest of the incoming tide it may be carried to land.

The "Daily News" rejoices that the representation will include the social, economic and intellectual elements, and says that this variety and comprehensiveness contains a promise of a satisfactory issue.

The "Morning Post" says it must not be forgotten that the Government of Ireland is not purely an Irish question, because the security of Great Britain largely depends on Ireland, which is the postern through which every enemy has hitherto tried to enter. Therefore Great Britain cannot carry into effect the Convention decisions unless they do not injure the interests and security of the Kingdom.

The "Times" comments on the patriotic courage and common sense of the Ulster members of the House of Commons in refusing to shut the door on the hope of settlement however slender they may think it. The "Times" does not doubt that the Ulster leaders will recommend acceptance by the Ulster Council.

The "Daily Mail" says that the probabilities are that the Convention will meet and that it will put Ireland very definitely on trial before the Empire and the world and will test most thoroughly whatever capacity for constructive statesmanship Ireland possesses.

Who Will be Chairman?

London, May 22.

There are many rumours as to who will be the Chairman of the Convention. The names mentioned are those of General Smuts, Mr. Asquith, Mr. Lowther, Lord Shaftesbury and Lord Donoughmore.

BIG U.S. FIRE.

New York, May 22.

A fire, starting in the business quarter and spreading to the residential quarter, destroyed a hundred blocks at Atlanta. The damage is estimated at millions of dollars.

RAJAH BROOKE.

London, May 22.

The first part of the funeral service of the Rajah of Sarawak was held in the Parish Church, Cirencester, yesterday, the coffin being covered with the national flag of Sarawak.

The chief mourners included the Rajah, the Tuan Muda, the Sayung Muda and the Tuan Bagan. Several officers of the Sarawak Government were also present.

THE SILVER MARKET.

London, May 22.

Silver quoted at 37.7.8. The market is very quiet.

ORGAN RECITAL.

Mr. Denman Fuller at the Union Church.

The new organ at the Union Church was adequately tested last evening when Mr. Denman Fuller, F.R.C.O., L.R.A.M., organist of St. John's Cathedral, gave a recital in the presence of a good-sized congregation. The new instrument, of which the church may well be proud, had previously given evidence of beautiful tone and sweetness, and the recital last evening only served to show that it is well worth all the time and money which have been spent upon it.

Mr. Denman Fuller opened his recital by rendering Wesley's Choral Song and Fugue, and, as the recitalist said in the accompanying remarks upon the piece, this work is a noble example of the composer's style, and compares favourably with any of the kind yet written. It was capably performed. Elgar's Meditation was the next composition given, and this was followed by H. Smart's Air and Variations, a work bringing out all the beauties of the instrument, as well as calling forth the best interpretative skill of the organist. The Madrigal of that famous contemporary organist, E. H. Lemare, was rendered with expression and charm, being followed by the Pathetic Symphony of Tchaikowsky, a work deservedly famous and popular. The last movement of the work was selected, and Mr. Denman Fuller demonstrated his undoubted ability as an organist, giving a really delightful interpretation. A composition by the recitalist, entitled "Recessional", was very much enjoyed, and the last two pieces rendered were a Serenade by Frank Bridge and the Fugate from the fifth of C. M. Widor's, celebrated ten Symphonies. Both last-named works were listened to with real pleasure.

During the singing of a hymn, a collection was made in aid of the Scottish Women's Hospital Fund.

GENERAL NEWS.

U. S. Surtax on Silk.
Shanghai, 10th May.—It is reported that the United States is raising funds to help the Entente Powers financially, proposed to levy a surtax on silk and tea but Democratic members and others having strongly opposed, there is a tendency not to touch on tariff questions but to get sources to increase revenue from other taxes.

Enlargement of Hanyang Arsenal.

The enlargement of the Hanyang Arsenal has long been under consideration. It is estimated that the amount required for building more premises and purchasing additional machinery will be over 300,000 dollars. Owing to the lack of funds, it is considered by the Board of War that one third of this amount should be paid by the Hupoh Provincial Treasury in order to relieve the pressure on the Central Government. The Director of the Arsenal has been notified with regard to this.

The Osaka Disaster.

As investigations progress the estimate of the loss caused by the disaster at Osaka must be again revised. It is now computed, says the Japan Chronicle, that the amount to be paid out by the insurance companies will reach Y4,500,000, and when to this is added other losses not covered by insurance it is thought that the total will not be below Y10,000,000. It is said the Japanese insurance companies have not been called upon to pay such a large amount of claims for a single disaster since the establishment of the insurance business in Japan.

Dr. Wu Ting-fang—Reported Resignation.

Following the resignation of the Chinese Ministers of the Navy, of Justice and of Agriculture and Commerce, Dr. Wu Ting-fang is reported to have tendered his resignation to the Government. The report says that Dr. Wu went to the President's Office and the Cabinet last week and he sent in his letter of resignation in the afternoon of the same day. It is likely that Dr. Wu's resignation will be considered in conjunction with the resignation of his colleagues, but it is not known whether their resignation will be accepted or not.

Japanese Railway Loan.
Subscriptions for the new Railway Loan of Y40,000,000 were closed on the 5th instant, says the Japan Chronicle. The total subscriptions amounted to Y42,345,350, of which Y3,765,550 represented subscriptions with premiums. Subscriptions in Osaka amounted to Y4,300,000 and those in Tokyo to Y26,000,000, premiums ranging from 10 sen to Y1.10. The result of the subscriptions is not so satisfactory as was expected, but it cannot be said to be very unfavorable, comparing the present issue with the Railway Loan raised in the same amount in May of last year, when subscriptions totalled Y43,124,650.

American Purchase of Airships.
The purchase of sixteen non-rigid dirigible airships for coast and harbour patrol work at a total cost of $649,250 is announced by the Navy Department. The airships are the first of such type to be bought by the United States Navy under the recent $5,000,000 appropriation for aeronautics. They will be 160 feet in length, 31 feet in diameter, and 50 feet high over all; will be equipped with radio communication and 100 horse motors capable of making a continuous flight of sixteen hours at 35 miles, and maintaining a maximum speed of 45 miles an hour for ten hours. Under the designs drafted by naval constructors, the dirigibles will be able to operate from shore bases and alight on water surfaces in good weather.

HONGKONG, THURSDAY, MAY 24, 1917.

EMPIRE DAY.

Although yet another 24th of May has found the world still at war, there are two points on which the subjects of the enormous Empire over which His Gracious Majesty rules may congratulate themselves: strides have been made towards the final establishment of an enduring peace; and the sons of the Empire have been drawn more closely together than ever, during the year that has gone. Misunderstandings have been swept aside in India and South Africa; Australia, New Zealand and Canada are showing themselves more anxious than ever to make sacrifices for the sake of the Mother Country, while from the smaller Colonies a steady stream of men and money continues to flow for the defence of the Empire. Ireland, too, means to set her house in order, and, at this very moment, the way is being made clear for an adjustment of her troubles.

And there are yet other respects in which to-day is a special "Empire Day," for almost the entire non-British world just now inclines to anti-monarchism. The age is one of republics. The recent revolution in Russia has caused an echo in various other parts of the world; first and foremost, as goes without saying, in Germany and Austria. Indeed almost the whole trend of modern Continental thought, where it is not militaristic, is anti-monarchical; and many of us may live to see the day when Britain will be almost alone in supporting a monarchy. That we always shall support one, there is no room for doubt. And the reason is not far to seek. We want no revolution to set us free, because we are free already. Our fathers saw to that; and they realized, as we do to-day, that the safest form of Government is what has aptly been termed a hereditary republic. A domination such as exists to-day in Germany was never possible in Britain when once the Norman and Saxon elements had become welded. Only a naturally free people could have obtained from such a monarch as King John the Charter on which our liberties are based. Only a free people could have handed on from one generation to another the wholesome doctrine that the King is as much the servant of the people as he is their ruler. Such a doctrine made for universal content, for it gave every man as it were a proprietary interest in the Crown. Of course we have had Sovereigns who have sought to over-ride the custom; but their triumph has invariably been a short one. Plantagenet and Tudor, Stuart and Guelph, all have been made to feel, when it was necessary, that the ultimate voice in Britain is the people's. With such a theory woven into the grain of the Britisher, it was hardly likely that he would want to try any dangerous experiments. Against the better judgment of the country, it once tolerated a ten years' would-be republic; but it was soon made clear that the man in whom the people had endeavoured to put their trust was betraying them; and was in point of fact an infinitely greater tyrant than any member of that Royal House which ultimately wrought its own downfall by its exaggerated belief in the Divine Right. Britain had her lesson then, and does not need another. She has no quarrel with nations which prefer an elective government; but she knows what suits herself.

Again, in the year that has gone, our Empire has strengthened its relations with foreign Powers. Between it and France the bond grows tighter every day, while from every other nation, save our enemies, praise—even if sometimes grudging—comes. Other nations may say of us, as we readily say of ourselves, that we pass our time between making and repairing blunders; but we are proud to feel that to-day there is no Allied or neutral country that questions the honesty of John Bull's intentions. The British killed the old story of their being a race of grasping hypocrites when, at an incredible expense and without any hope of gain, they went to the help of the Hun's victims. They have established their integrity and have gained immeasurably in the world's respect. And there is yet one more point. Since last Empire Day the British have entered into an alliance with the other great English-speaking nation of the world. Old jealousies and misunderstandings have vanished, and the men of the daughter country are rushing to take their places in the field by the side of the men of Britain and of France, in the great and last battle for the world's liberty. An Empire that can attract to itself the sympathy and affection of all the diverse elements that now make up the Entente is surely not one of which we ever need feel ashamed.

An Appeal to Patriots.

The appeal made on behalf of the Hongkong Aeroplane Fund comes with special appropriateness on Empire Day, and we sincerely hope that Mr. Bryan's letter of yesterday's date will result in the desired end being attained. So far, it appears, a sum of $6,500 has been subscribed to the Fund—quite a good response, considering the many other calls being made in these days on behalf of the war. But the amount is not sufficient to meet the cost of an aeroplane, a further sum of $6,000 being required. That can and ought to be raised. There is a special inducement provided in the fact that if this amount is forthcoming by the first week in July, a local resident will contribute the entire cost of an additional machine. By raising this $6,000, therefore, we shall be giving to the Empire, not one but two aeroplanes. The condition imposed by the anonymous patriot will, we feel sure, be fully met. We have five or six weeks in which to find the sum, and it will be a thousand pities if the opportunity presented is not taken full advantage of. The Overseas Club has done splendid work on behalf of the Imperial Aircraft Fund, and, as it points out, every contributor to funds under its auspices has the satisfaction of knowing that though he may be prevented by circumstances from taking his place in the field, he is helping to repel the German invader. Every machine presented is named after the contributing district, and in this way a permanent link is established with the Royal Flying Corps. Our readers do not need to be reminded that the wastage of aeroplanes is very heavy, and is likely to increase as the days go by. That is an additional reason why we should do all in our power to help the Hongkong Fund. Who will start the ball rolling with the first hundred dollars towards the six thousand required?

Allied Subjects and the Army.

We rejoice to read that the advisability of enlisting subjects of our allies who happen to be living in Britain is under discussion. As usual, our Government is a day behind the fact. If we remember correctly, the war was not very old when the French Government made a law that all Britishers of military age, resident in France, must either join the Foreign Legion or else betake themselves to their own country; and a remarkably sensible law it was. For over two years there have been many Belgians in England who are well able to fight—and some, we grieve to say, have occasionally found their way into the dock of a police court for one offence or another. Why not, if it is impossible to put these men back with their own army, enrol them in ours? With regard to Colonial Volunteer regiments, too: why cannot Allied subjects be admitted, at any rate for the duration of the war? In Hongkong there are many Americans and Frenchmen, as well as a few Italians, who would gladly offer their services for the Volunteer or the Police Reserve; and it would be a gracious action on the part of the Government to give them an opportunity of showing their anxiety to play the game. If only a hundred extra men could be enrolled in the Colony by this means, it would free another hundred for active service, at need. There is such a thing as being too insular. After all, the war is much our allies' war as it is our own, and it is rather hard on an active American or Frenchman, who is forced by circumstances to remain in Hongkong, that he should be denied an opportunity of "doing his bit." We have met many of these men who would thankfully have shouldered a rifle and put themselves in training for the defence of the Colony, should need ever have arisen. It is not too late for Hongkong Britishers to mend their ways, in this regard; and we earnestly hope that some arrangement can be made whereby the Oath of Allegiance can be waived in the case of these men, and substituted by some special Oath sworn in the presence of their respective consuls.

EMPIRE DAY.

ITS OBSERVANCE IN HONGKONG.

BRITISH AND ALLIED SPEECHES AT THE HONGKONG CLUB.

To-day is Empire Day, and whilst there have been no really outstanding celebrations in Hongkong, the day has been marked by several events calculated to remind residents of the glories of the Empire, of which the Colony forms so important an outpost. At nine o'clock this morning special services were held at the Anglican and Roman Catholic Cathedrals for school children, these being largely attended, and later in the morning the members of the Hongkong Club gathered together to toast the future prosperity and welfare of the Empire. On the rifle range at King's Park, a Services shoot was held, which unfortunately was marred by wet weather, and this afternoon the Bandman Opera Company gave a matinee at the City Hall for the benefit of Service men. This evening an assault-at-arms will be held in the large marquee at the Volunteer Headquarters, this having been arranged by the Police Reserve, with the object of giving naval and military men a treat after their own heart.

St. John's Cathedral Service.

The Anglican Cathedral was filled to overflowing this morning, when practically the whole of the school children of Protestant schools attended the special Empire Day service. There were nearly 800 scholars present from the following schools:—Queen's College, Ellis Kadoorie School, Saiyungpun School, Wanchai School, Yauwatt School, Praya East School, Indian School, Kowloon British School, Victoria British School, Peak School, Bellio's Public School, Diocesan Girls' School, Diocesan Boys' School, St. Stephen's Boys' School, St. Stephen's Girls' School, St. Paul's College and the Military School. The Cadets and Girl Guides were also represented.

Among those present were His Excellency the Governor and Miss Phoebe May, accompanied by Captain Edwards, A.D.C., and Mr. E. Ralphs, (Inspector of English Schools).

A special form of service was used, in which such appropriate hymns as "O Lord, the God of Battles," "Land of our birth, we pledge to thee" (Kipling), and "O God our help in Ages Past" were sung. The prayers had a special reference to the war. The Rev. A. G. H. Griffiths conducted the service, the Rev. J. Kirk Macdonald reading the lesson. The Bishop of Victoria, (Dr. Lander), gave the address, the Rev. W. T. Featherstone (Chaplain) being also present.

In addressing the children, the Bishop, who took as his text "In the name of our God we will set up our banners" (Psalm 22, v. 5), spoke of the British flag, the Union Jack, saying that it sometimes denoted the presence of the King or of His Excellency the Governor, and was sometimes the sign of victory. When the flag was hoisted over Bagdad a few weeks ago, it meant a British victory, and our troops in France were sometimes setting up the French flag to show that they had succeeded in taking a town or village from the hands of the Germans. He went on to say that the flag stood for four things—loyalty, liberty, unity and Christianity. He appealed to all to be loyal to the soldiers and sailors who were now giving proof of their loyalty, and said that wherever the flag was flown, there was liberty and freedom. The Empire had paid enormous sums of money and spent many lives in order to free the slave, and there was no such thing as slavery known where the Empire's flag was hoisted. It did not stand for "the Will to Power" as the German flag did, and he asked, why do nearly 500,000 Chinese live in this British Colony? Because under the flag they were all free. He asked the children always to avoid being overbearing or harsh to peoples of other nationalities, for true liberty meant liberty all round. In speaking of the unity the flag stood for, the Bishop explained how it was called the Union Jack, and finally dwelt upon the Christianity that the Union Jack represented.

The service was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

Mr. Denman Fuller was at the organ.

At the Roman Catholic Cathedral.

Pupils of the Catholic schools assembled at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception this morning, when a service of a patriotic character was held.

His Lordship Bishop Pozzoni officiated and was assisted by the clergy and students of the Cathedral Seminary. The Prayer for Peace was recited by pupils of the Italian Convent and Prayer for the King by the congregation, led by St. Joseph's College choir. The following hymns were sung:—"O Love Divine," and "Help of Christians," pupils of the Italian Convent; and "O Salutaris," by the congregation, led by St. Joseph's College choir. Tantum Ergo and the Laudate Dominum were also sung, while the service concluded with the National Anthem, in which all joined.

The schools participating in the service were:—Army School of Hongkong and Kowloon, St. Joseph's English College, Italian Convent, French Convent, St. Francis' School (Wanchai), St. Mary's School (Kowloon), St. Lewis Industrial School (West Point), Yauwatt Chinese School, Hungnam Chinese School, Aberdeen Chinese School, Shaukiwan Chinese School, Key Lok Chinese School (Wanchai), and To-Ying School (Glenside).

The Right Rev. Bishop D. Pozzoni delivered an address as follows:—"Dear Children,—By the grace of God we meet again this year in His house to hear Him once more our thanks for the unimpaired greatness and strength of the British Empire. We all rejoice from the fact that we are living in a British colony to which we are proud to offer our loyalty for the great benefits we enjoy under its flag. These benefits we owe to British justice and her sense of individual liberty. The present war has given us the greatest proof of this. By what indeed, was England inspired to take up arms, with the determination not to lay them down until victory is secured; if not for the freedom of nations and individuals both in their material and moral sides? It is due to the love for unrestrained freedom within the limits of justice that prompt England to grant freedom to all creeds and enable the Catholic religion to develop to its full extent in all places under the British flag and most especially in Great Britain. "It can be safely asserted," says the Bishop of Northampton in one of his recent pastoral letters, "that as things go in the modern world, British Catholics would not exchange their political status for that of any of their fellow Catholics under any other Government. Nowhere in the world, probably, are so many conversions from Protestantism recorded as in England. Some ten thousand are received every year. This progress is due in part to the actual position of elementary schools under the British flag, which compares favourably," says the same Bishop, "with that of most other nations." But, dear children, the fortunate circumstance of your living in a British colony and pursuing your studies in schools administered under the just and liberal English laws will not be of any use to you if you do not apply yourselves earnestly in order to profit by them. It is not enough that a tree should be planted in a fertile field in the spring time in order that it may produce good fruits; it is also necessary that it be watered and pruned by the farmer; so it is with you. You are in the spring time of your life when you are at school. You must not only do your best by applying diligently to your studies but also put into practice the lessons that are given you now so that the summer of your manhood and the winter of old age might not be dismal failures. Some children grow to young manhood without developing their character and therefore in after years they are nothing but overgrown babies.

Cement, before being placed into the mould, can be given any kind of shape; but after it has been placed into the mould it becomes hard as stone. At the present time your minds and hearts are soft and pliable. You will be fashioned according to the mould you will select for yourselves and you will become fixed and set in your ways for better or worse. As it is useless to try and give the cement block another shape or size once it is moulded, so it will be equally useless to try to give your hearts and minds a different cast after you have once set in your ways. From this, then, you will see how important it is that your hearts and minds be given a proper training now whilst you are yet at school, so that in after life you may be men of good character who will be able to perform your religious as well as your social and civil duties.

Remember, dear children, that every one of you has a mission in life, for which you are now preparing yourselves. The plan for this mission is drawn up by none other than Almighty God Himself. Everyone has the germ of virtue and certain inclinations that appeal to our mission in life which is to be cultivated in a special way. There is much truth in the saying of the learned Alfred de Vigny that a great life is but the thought of youth carried out in mature years. Although the missions of men are many, they are common to all in one respect, that is, all men, without exception, have the mission to help one another. You must therefore do your best to see that your education should not only be used for your own benefit, but also for the benefit of those among whom you are to live. While you attend with all your diligence to your studies, you must train your mind and heart to learn how to be useful to your neighbours. The seed of a generous life must be sown in boyhood. It is not only necessary that a boy should be fond of his studies, that is to say, to study only with the purpose of gaining knowledge for himself and his personal gratification. That would be selfish and would lead some to a morbid life, as in the case of those who indulge in romantic reading for amusement. It is praiseworthy for a boy at school to look after his own progress and to be able to earn his own living, but, if he forgets the progress of others, he will become a selfish man, unable to take any interest in the moral and temporal need of his neighbours. Now what have you to do in order to avoid selfishness, in order to become useful to society and be able to perform acts of charity among the people whom God will place you?

First of all you must have an intimate knowledge of your religion and of the means that your religion gives in order to be able to practise her teaching, for only religion has the power to command our will so that we may deny ourselves in order to help others; only religion has the power to persuade our mind that it is right to do so, and only religion has the means to enable us to do so. But this knowledge will be of no use if you will not conform your daily life to her teaching by employing daily the means given for this purpose (especially by approaching as often as you can the Holy Communion).

Secondly, you should remember what Tertullian said, that man is born a Christian and comes, consequently children are naturally generous and charitable. Be careful, therefore, not to deaden the good nature that is in you or to corrupt either at home or in your relations with strangers. (Continued on page 4.)

MARINE COURT ENQUIRY.

Finding Delivered Last Evening.

At the Marine Court last evening, the finding was delivered in the enquiry into the allegations of misconduct brought by Capt. De la Sala, of the s.s. Phenomenon, against the ex-Chief Engineer of the vessel, Mr. W. J. Stokes.

The Court was constituted as follows:—The Harbour Master, Commander C. W. Beckwith (President), Eng. Lieut. Commander F. E. Nuttall (H.M.S. Tamar), Capt. P. H. Rolfe (Marine Supt., Indo-China S. N. Co.), Mr. D. McMurtry (Supt. Eng., Indo-China S. N. Co.) and Mr. S. Bell Smith (Master s.s. Honam).

Mr. W. E. L. Shepton represented the complainant and Hon. Mr. S. E. Pollock, K.C., the defendant. Commander Beckwith said:—Gentlemen, it was arranged that the finding should be delivered to-day in the case brought by the Master of the Phenomenon, Capt. De la Sala, against the Chief Engineer, Mr. Stokes.

In this case a number of charges have been brought by the Master against the Chief Engineer, extending over a period of two months. Certain of these charges are of a trifling nature and in the opinion of this Court should never have been formulated. We therefore propose to deal only with the principal charges as follows:—

On March the 6th when at Cape St. James the Master states that the Chief Engineer came on the bridge and spoke to him in a disrespectful and insolent way, addressing him before the 2nd Mate, Pilot and Quarter Master as "Mr. Mar." and questioning his right to delay the ship for 4 hours, and finally ended up saying "Not guilty this time, don't do it again." There is a conflict of evidence here. The Chief Engineer admits addressing the Master as "Mr. Mar," but says it was in the privacy of the Chart House, and it was only in jest. The Court consider that this manner of addressing the Master officially is contrary to all good discipline, but as this form of address seems to have been the common practice of the Chief Engineer for a considerable time, we are of opinion that the Master should have taken proper steps early in his command of this ship to have stopped this objectionable familiarity.

Again on the 28th March the Chief Officer was logged for being drunk and the Chief Engineer when asked by the Master refused to sign the Log. The Court are of opinion that under the circumstances then ruling on board (there was only a Chinese second officer) it was clearly the Chief Engineer's duty to sign the Official Log and assist the Master to keep discipline in the ship.

On March 29th the Chief Engineer is charged whilst at Saigon with having interfered with the loading of the ship. There is no evidence to prove that this was so, and is denied by Mr. Stokes, but it is proved that the Chief Engineer did threaten to leave the ship with all his engineers if any more cargo was put on board, and it is also proved by a document signed by the Chief Engineer that the ship was not over loaded at this time. So that we consider this was an act of misconduct on the part of Mr. Stokes.

April 9th, 10th and 11th the Master states in his evidence that he gave the Chief Engineer orders on the 9th of April for certain reasons not to make any test with the drinking water publicly. Here there is a conflict of evidence. Mr. Stokes states that no such orders were ever given to him, and that he had no idea there was any trouble connected with the drinking water until the 11th of April, when he was heavily logged. No evidence has been produced to prove that such order was ever given to the Chief Engineer, and as most of the Master's orders to the Engine Room appear to have been given in writing this is particularly noticeable. Also Dr. Arnall in his evidence states that during the three days, i.e. 9th, 10th and 11 April, the Chief Engineer brought samples of drinking water to the Master daily for inspection. The relationship existing between the Master and Chief Engineer during this period appeared to be quite friendly.

Friday, June 1.—No. 1 Section and No. 2 Platoon at Central. Also Recruits of all Companies for passing out by A.S.P. (B).

Appointed to Shanghai.
It is stated that M. Toussaint, procureur general in Indo-China, has been appointed as the French consular judge in Shanghai, and is expected to arrive there shortly.

After going very carefully into all the evidence given to the Court, we are of opinion that the Chief Engineer was responsible for the drinking water being delivered clean to the emigrants, and to do this it was necessary for him to pump through the General Service pipes until water ran clean, and that it would be necessary to test and taste this water from time to time until the results were satisfactory. In doing this it appears to the Court that the Chief Engineer chose the most convenient and private place for this work, i.e. Cock C. And that as there had been no trouble heretofore during the voyage with the emigrants over the water, and that as water is being constantly pumped during the day, through the General Service pipes for various reasons on a ship, it seems difficult to understand why this particular water being pumped or tasted should interest the emigrants or alarm them in any way. Taking all these points into consideration and the absence of evidence that any proper order was given to the Chief Engineer which we think should have been given in writing, or before a witness if this testing was considered to be dangerous, we are of opinion that the Chief Engineer on those occasions carried out his duty in a proper way and to the best of his ability.

In summing up this case generally, although the most serious charges have been proved, we are strongly of opinion that the Chief Engineer, Mr. Stokes, consistently adopted an attitude of disrespect towards the Master of the ship, Mr. De la Sala, and we consider that such acts of misconduct which have been proved, although they do not amount in our opinion to gross misconduct, were detrimental to all good discipline and order on board and merits severe censure, and taking into consideration Mr. Stokes' long and we believe good service with Company, and also the fact that he has already been discharged from this Company after 13 years' service, we consider this to be sufficient punishment.

LAWN TENNIS.

Last Evening's Final.

A great deal of interest was manifested in the final of the Mixed Handicap Doubles in the Hongkong Cricket Club's tournament which was played on the War Charities Court last evening, the special stand being well filled. The contestants were Mr. and Mrs. Nisbet and the Rev. C. L. Cooper Hunt and Mrs. Armstrong, and it was expected that a very close fight would be seen. This expectation was fully realised, for from the very commencement, matters were even. Both the lady players were seen to be in really good form, and it can truly be said that they had more of the play than their partners. The first set was won by Mr. and Mrs. Nisbet, the score being 6/4. At the opening of the next set, Mr. Cooper Hunt and Mrs. Armstrong took the lead, and so well were they playing that they took the score to 3/1. From this point the game went against them, Nisbet playing close up to the net with splendid judgment and force. The succeeding games going to Mr. and Mrs. Nisbet, they won the set and match by 6/4, 8/3, or 12 games to 7.

SHIPPING NEWS.

Vickers' Dividend.

The directors of Messrs Vickers, Ltd., announce a final dividend for the year 1916 of 1s 6d (free of income tax), making 2s 6d per share, or 12½ per cent. for the year.

Swedish Shipping Developments.

From Gothenburg Nya Verkstads-Aktiebolaget. Gothenburg, there has just been delivered the steamer Engelsberg, about 7,000 tons deadweight, constructed to the account of Rederi-Aktiebolaget Nordstjernan (Johnson Line), Stockholm. She has engines of about 4,000 h.p., and is a sister ship to the steamers Gylfe, Stjerna, and others lately delivered by the same yard to the same owners. These steamers have been specially built for the company's traffic between the Lake Vänern (Werner) and the North Sea ports, via the Gota Canal, and are fitted with the most modern appliances for quick loading and discharging.

Kawasaki Dockyard Co.

The uncertainty of the steel supply, caused by the recent trade restrictions by belligerent countries, has induced the Kawasaki Dockyard Company of Kobe to change its plans to construct eighteen stock boats with a combined tonnage of 174,000 tons, including four freighters of 12,000 tons each and several 9,000-ton boats. The new plan drawn up as a result of the failure to obtain enough materials consists in constructing twelve boats, two of 12,000 tons and ten 9,000 tons. Seven of the latter vessels have already been sold to a British firm through the company's agents in London for delivery in August. The rest will be built during the latter months of the year, to be completed by January next year and have been sold to a British owner for £420 per ton deadweight.

Government Responsibility in Marine Insurance in Japan.

The "Japan Chronicle" says it is proposed to overhaul in favour of a more business-like arrangement the War Marine Insurance Compensation. Law under which the Government is responsible for 80 per cent. of any claims made in accordance with the provisions of the Law. An idea of this undertaking may be obtained from the latest returns showing particulars for March. The total contracts made during that month amounted to ¥224,321,000, showing an increase of ¥73,710,000, or 48.6 per cent. over the preceding month. Of these contracts, those on articles of merchandise, as separate from hulls, amounted to ¥151,100,000, in other words, to 77.6 per cent. of the value of the month's total foreign trade, put at ¥207,740,000. The total contracts since the promulgation of the Law in September 1916 to the end of March amounted to ¥2,967,600,000. The claims raised amounted to ¥13,12,000, of which the Government was responsible for ¥10,500,000. Of this amount the Government has so far paid ¥6,663,856.

Food for the Ton-Fer-Ton Scheme.

The "Neue Freie Presse," of Vienna, in a telegram from Berlin reports (says Mr. A. Beaumont, special correspondent of the Press Association and "Daily Telegraph," wiring from Milan) an interview with Herr Ballin regarding German activity in mercantile shipbuilding, which, he says, is being continued with a view to the resumption of German shipping on a large scale after the war. The Hamburg-America Line is having two steamers built the Bismarck, of 56,000 tons, and the Tirpitz of 20,000 tons, besides three other steamers of 27,000 tons each. Nine big steamers are being built at the Vulkan Works at Bremen, including what Herr Ballin boasts to be the biggest freighter in the world of 18,000 tons. Three freighters are being built at the Flensburg Works, one of 13,000 tons and the other two of 17,000 tons. They are intended for service through the Panama Canal. The Hamburg-South American Line is building a sister ship to the Trautman, and the North German Lloyd is building the Hindenburg and Columbus of 35,000 tons each; two steamers, the Muenchen and Zepelin 18,000 tons each; and twelve cargo ships of 12,000 tons each. The German-East African Line is building six the Hansa Line eight, and the Kosmos Line ten ships.

Remember that generally the best men are kind to their servants; never despise the poor or the imperfect; never indulge in any cruelty towards any kind of living creatures. All this is not enough; you must also try to form habits of generous actions. Instead of losing your time in reading useless books, you must read books on social, charitable works. From them you will have an idea of the great need of society and by them you will be stimulated and taught how to be useful for the happiness of others. Ourselves made up his mind to spend his life for the poor, as he really did, because when at school he read the life of St. Vincent de Paul. There are thousands of similar examples. Instead of losing your time in amusement injurious to your moral and physical energies, you should at least now and then pay visits to hospitals, orphanages, and like institutions and ask to be guided in such visits. Through these visits you will come to a knowledge of how many and what different kinds of sufferings there are in this world and how great and urgent is the necessity to succour them and they will not fail to move your heart to pity and to take some personal share however small in helping now, with the hope to do more in after life. To how many have not these visits been the source of their resolution to spend their lives for the benefit of others it is difficult to say. From these visits you will also understand the great necessity of practising thrift which is becoming more and more urgent each day as a consequence of this terrible war.

Thirdly, you should, according to your means, also take part in the works of charity. It is very edifying to know that there are a good number of school girls who are daily doing something for war charities; their good example should stimulate others to do the same. You should give your name at least as aspirants to social, charitable associations ready to become active members soon after leaving school. I know that there are boys who have already done so towards the Society of St. Vincent de Paul; may their example be followed by many more.

Finally, you must put into practice every day the lessons you have learnt of discipline, orderliness, and sportsmanship, otherwise you will never be ready for those services of which the country may be in need and which you may be called upon to perform.

Before concluding, there is another advice that I would like to give especially to the elder girls and that is that all should acquire some practical knowledge in Home Nursing and First Aid which have become so important and useful in these days. I know that there are already many girls who have attended the course of lectures given on these subjects and many have gained the certificates awarded by the examiners and I hope that their number will increase.

I conclude by blessing you all and asking God to help you to take to heart these few advice and enable you to put them into practice according to your ability, and above all to bear well in mind on this "Empire Day" the duties you owe to the State as loyal citizens and to God as true Christians.

Essay Competition at St. Joseph's College.

Since its formation, the St. Joseph's College (Old Boys') Association has made it a practice to offer prizes for the best essays on "Empire Day" in each class. The competition was again held this year.

At the request of the Rev. Bro. Director, the essays were submitted to Mr. E. K. L. Ho, Inspector of English Schools, for adjudication. Mr. Ralph, who very kindly undertook the task, had very great difficulty in adjudicating, as the papers sent him were all very good. The results announced at the parade at the College this morning are as follows:

Class 1. — A. A. Abdoolrahman.
Class 2. — Noel Braga.

Class 3. — Leo d'Almada.
Class 4a. — S. Garrod.
Class 4b. — L. Lebedel.
Class 5a. — H. Barroa.
Class 5b. — Hugh Braga.
Class 5c. — Leo Yu Chong.

The prizes, which consisted of suitable books, were presented by Mr. Ralph to the successful competitors. In making the presentation he said:—I have to thank you for so kindly inviting me to distribute the prizes won by various students for Empire Day essays, and also for giving me the opportunity of reading the best essays sent in. The task of final adjudication was no easy one, as all the papers I read were very good indeed, and I congratulate all the writers on their efforts. Your Headmaster has asked me to say a few words on Empire Day, but many of you have written such excellent essays on the subject that, speaking at such short notice, I find it difficult to say much that has as yet been left unsaid. St. Joseph's College is to be congratulated upon the patriotic spirit shown annually in its celebration of Empire Day, and thanks are due to the St. Joseph's College Association, which generously provides prizes for the Empire Day essays. Although the foundations of the vast Empire to which we belong were laid centuries ago, by far the greatest development took place during the reign of Queen Victoria; it is fitting therefore that on the anniversary of her birth, the growth and glory of the Empire should year by year be celebrated. Queen Victoria ascended the throne of an Empire embracing 33 million square miles; she handed it down to her illustrious son and successor, King Edward VII, with three million square miles added to it. When she began her reign, the Empire covered one-sixth of all the land of the globe; she handed to her successor a territory embracing nearly one-fourth of the whole of the globe. On this territory dwell more than four hundred millions of people, more than one-fifth of all the world's inhabitants, people of every race and clime, of every colour and every religion, speaking innumerable tongues and living in various degrees of civilisation. The story of the building of the Empire is far too long for me to tell to-day, but we can remember that the Empire is the result of the strenuous self-sacrifice of men and women of our race who have gone forth, regardless of dangers and difficulties, to carry the flag and all that the flag implies to every corner of the earth. And as new peoples have come within the fold of the Empire they have been shown by our Empire-builders and rulers that they can rest confident in the knowledge that under the British rule Justice, Freedom and Peace are established. And in this great world war in which we are now engaged the Allies—and all of us assembled here to-day belong to one or other of the Allied nations—are fighting not for vain glorious conquest, but for a peace which shall ensure to all nations the blessings of Justice and Freedom. (Applause.)

Bro. Aimer, Director of the College, briefly replied. The scholars, to the number over five hundred and fifty, then marched past and saluted the flag.

On the call of Bro. Aimer, three rousing cheers were given for the King, after which the boys marched to the Catholic Cathedral, where a commemorative service was held for scholars attending the Catholic schools in Hongkong and Kowloon.

The Function at the Hongkong Club.

There was a large and representative gathering at the Hongkong Club at noon to-day, those present including prominent officers of the Government, service, and the business community, as well as members of the Club and their friends. Patriotic speeches were delivered by the Chief Justice, the American, French and Russian Consuls and Mr. B. Sutherland, and it was anticipated that the last-named that the following telegram was being despatched to His Majesty the King:—

"Large gathering members, friends Hongkong Club, and many representatives of mercantile marine, which has rendered such noble service, desire convey your Majesties dutiful cordial greetings and loyalty on this our Empire Day, and desire humbly express admiration of your increasing solicitude and efforts ameliorate sufferings of those to whom the war has brought bereavement and loss, and tender congratulations on success already achieved by Navy and Army and prayers for a speedy and triumphant end of war followed by lasting peace based on justice and freedom all oppressed nations."

HOLYOAK.

Chairman.

Sir William Rees Davies, proposing the health of His Majesty the King, said:—Ladies and gentlemen, I have been deputed by the Committee of this Club to submit to you on this Empire Day the toast of His Majesty the King. Empire Day, as you know, is the original conception of the uniting together of the component parts of the British Empire, the Mother Country and her overseas Dominions. The flag under which I stand this morning demonstrates the fact that we are united. No celebration of our Empire would be complete without the association of our Allies. This is not a gala day—we must not regard it as such; it is, in my opinion, no occasion for a humorous speech, and I promise I will not attempt it. This is a day in this far outpost of the Empire in which we meet together to pledge our allegiance, our affection, our loyalty to our King. (Applause.) And again we meet to cement the Alliance which exists between us, an overwhelming majority of the great nations in the world fighting in the cause of humanity against ruthless enemies who have resorted to every form of oppression, of cruelty, of outrage in the pursuit of their relentless warfare. This is not an occasion for celebrating the fruits of victory. The time is not yet, but in the end victory is assured. As sure as the light of day follows the darkness of the night, so our righteous cause will prevail. Our sacrifices in human life and treasure, terrible as they have been, will not be in vain, and future generations will owe eternal gratitude to the youth of to-day. Our advance on the Western Front during the last two months shows the staff the British and French Armies are made of to-day. Our ammunition is secured, our financial resources are boundless, our soldiers and sailors are full of fight. The nation is arising to a full sense of responsibility, and time only will vindicate the cause of the Allies. Let us thank God for our all-powerful Navy, that is pursuing its ceaseless vigil on the seas. To them we and our Allies owe the preservation of our commerce and freedom from invasion. Let us reflect for a moment on the effect of the war on our Empire. Has it not consolidated the British Empire? South Africa, a few years ago our enemy, under the benign influence of British rule, is now our staunch friend in battle, due to the concession of local autonomy. South Africa had been given a voice in her local affairs and she has in the field as brave a body of men as were ever turned out. She has given us a remarkable General and a remarkable statesman, General Smuts. It would be easy to talk at some length on the important part being taken by the Dominions and the Colonies. Canada and Australia have played a splendid part, coming right forward, the Crown Colonies have come into line. They have given much, but they will give more. (Applause.) The Mother Country owes much to its overseas possessions. Doubtless they will get their reward. The Imperial Federation, at one time the dream of the visionary, is now in the region of practical politics. Colonial statesmen have been sitting in London, they have been called in to help settle the problems that affect the whole Empire. Is that not a great epoch in our history? It is a glorious consolidation of the Empire. It is the redeeming feature which makes the English-speaking race a consolidated race. A few words about our gallant Allies. Gallant little Belgium at the outset of the war played a noble part. (Applause.) As to our neighbour, France, it is impossible to over-rate the services rendered by this great people. Our soldiers are fighting side by side with the French. The glorious Entente Cordiale, which was established during the reign of the great King Edward, has become lasting. The Channel only divides us from France, or did, but now in these days we have our aircraft, and nothing divides us. Let us hope that our friendship will be lasting and enduring. Russia, a great nation, which at the beginning of the war with its great Army held the eastern Front and enabled the Allies to concentrate their strength elsewhere, has acquired the eternal gratitude of the Allied Powers. Japan, our old Ally, in staunch, and her Navy in the Far East has played no small part in the battle. Italy, the home of Garibaldi, has joined us in crushing Prussian militarism and despotism. Finally, but not least, we welcome into this battle the United States of America. They are our kindred, they are our relations. By their coming into the battle we have secured the whole of the English-speaking race. We have all been struck by the part taken by the ex-President of America, Mr. Roosevelt, who himself at the outset urged his country forward and now at his age is prepared to lead an army on the battlefield of France. His was a splendid achievement. The United States is going to participate in the great victory. I am asked to-day to welcome the Consul General representing the Great Powers to this Club. Their presence here, standing under these united flags, is a great epoch in the history of Hongkong. This unity marks an important event, an important time in English history. I may say it is indeed a red letter day for the Hongkong Club. (Applause.) I bid you be of good cheer. Let us, if needs be, exhaust our final resources in this battle, and we shall hand down to our children and to generations to follow a noble heritage, the final vindication of right against might, and secure to all nations a charter of liberty and freedom. (Loud and prolonged applause.)

Mr. George E. Anderson, Consul General for the United States of America, said he was sure that those present would quite appreciate that to-day he was with them in a new relation. He felt compelled to say that the expressions during the last two-and-a-half years in Hongkong against Americans had not always been pleasant to Americans. They had been misjudged, and they had been faced with uncompromising criticism. The line America had taken had been the subject for review in the newspapers which was in some cases unfair. The United States was situated somewhat differently to any nation in Europe, their interests had been separated somewhat, and while there had been many ties which drew them close to the nations in Europe to which they were allied, it had been more as distant friends than as a neighbour. He had no disposition to apologise for what America had done. She had done her best as she had seen the right, and was now pursuing the same course. Their coming into the war represented no change of policy, but the natural inevitable developments of the policy they had pursued all along. He had found since America had entered the war that there was a tendency among British people to feel that they had come in by the back door. (Orises of "No, not at all.") The war had not been won yet. Lord Kitchener told them to look forward to a three years' war, and he wanted to say that America was preparing for another three years of war. He hardly knew what to say. He felt rather in the position of a merchant who was asked to deliver the goods. He thought the position of the United States could best be indicated from a leader in the New York Times, from which he read an extract. He believed that the position of the war to-day was like the Battle of Waterloo at four o'clock in the afternoon—it was time that the reserves were being brought up. The British square had been fighting a long time and now was the time to be aggressive. This was the occasion for them to use the reserves, and the reserves which were coming up were the United States. It seemed quite possible that, while Britain had borne the brunt of the fighting to-day, America would have to bear the heavier burden. What a stupendous struggle this was; everything was centred on a comparatively few miles in France. He was sure that they could not realise the hell that existed in the trenches. The world to-day was filled with widows and orphans. Some were dying, and others had paid the great sacrifice. But Britain to-day was greater than she had ever been before, while in the midst of this great devastating war, more and more people were dropping into the lap of Britannia. He did not think the average Britisher realised what a terrible danger to America Britain could be. On the borderland of Canada and America there was some 4,000 miles, but there was not a single gun, not a single man, nor a single fort on any portion of that land. (Cheers.)

M. Reas, the French Consul, said there were none among the Allies who could refrain from heartily participating in the rejoicings of Empire Day. It called up the glorious past of the British Empire and reminded them that the British were the first to set an example of a free nation, founding the Empire on the principles of fair play and determination to fight for the rights of mankind. Once more, three years ago, the British Empire entered a struggle for liberty against oppression, with its usual resolve. All its citizens, in perfect accord with the great democracies of the world, repeated after Kipling:—

There's but one task for all,
For each one life to give;
Who stands if Freedom falls,
Who dies if Freedom lives?

They had seen the now historical "Contemptible Little Army" of 1914 always growing stronger, until it had now become the formidable Army of the Somme, and it would not cease striking great blows, shoulder to shoulder with the French, until the wretched Boches had been overthrown and the world had become a better place to live in, and until justice should reign supreme. Two principles and two civilisations were fighting: the sovereignty of Right and the sovereignty of Might, and they were confident that the near future would see the victory of the Allies. To that victory the British Army and Navy had very fully contributed, from which they would derive an everlasting glory. "Hurrah for the British Army and Navy!" "Vive la France et ses Allies!"

M. D'Ostingen, the Russian Consul, said he was in the happy position of having been present at three of these Empire Day celebrations, and he thought he was only one of the Allied Consuls who had had the privilege. He wished to express to his Allied colleagues his expression of sincere gratitude. Since the war there had been momentous changes in Russia. In peace time they would have looked upon the recent situation there as a domestic, a family affair, but this change in her Constitution closely affected the cause of the Allies. Speaking of the peace movement in Russia, he wished to refer them to the Provisional Russian Government. This Government had said that the pledges entered into by Russia would not be broken. The Provisional Government had the united support of the whole country. Although he was not delegated to say so, he thought he was voicing the opinion of the Russians when he said that Russia would not sheath the sword until the hour of victory. He wished to pay a tribute to the work rendered by the women of England. They had done a splendid service, giving assistance which was quite different from what women had given in other wars. SERVICE CONCERT.

"Thoughtful Act by Kowloon Children."

The ladies and children of the Kowloon branch of the Ministering Children's League very kindly entertained a large number of men in H.M. Services to tea in the Sailors' and Soldiers' Home yesterday afternoon, and later to a concert and display in the Seamen's Institute. About three hundred and fifty men, representing all the units in the Command, and including a fair sprinkling of men from the Naval Yard, sat down to tea. Tables were served by the ladies of the League, assisted by the children, who helped to promote a feeling of the utmost good humour and friendliness.

At the beginning of the concert, the thanks of the men were well expressed by Bombardier Wilson for the excellent tea provided, and for the kind thought to the men thus shown.

The beautiful display given by the children was so thoroughly enjoyed that another vote of thanks was called for at the end of the concert, and cheer after cheer was given for the children. The whole affair was something of a novelty in Service circles, but a big number agreed with Bombardier Wilson that it was the most enjoyable concert they had attended during their stay in the Colony.

All the expenses are being met by the ladies of the League. The movement was initiated by Mrs. Aitken, President of the Kowloon Branch, who was assisted by a large number of members and associates. The event was such a success that it is now the intention of the promoters to give another performance sometime during the Autumn.

THE DOLLAR DIRECTORY.

Closing Its Forms for Publication.

It has been decided to close the forms of the new Hongkong Dollar Directory at the end of this present month, in order to place the book in the printer's hands for completion in June. Therefore it would be well for any firm or individual who have not yet sent in their names and addresses to do so without delay.

We are informed that a feature of the propaganda for names has been the great number who have responded by sending in their private addresses, a fact which has given much gratification to the Dollar Directory Company, as it will enable a complete residential section to be published.

Mr. J. B. Flynn Anderson, the originator of the "Dollar Directory" idea, asks us to allow him, through the medium of our columns, to express his sincere appreciation of the courtesy shown him by the public of Hongkong in responding so heartily to his request for names and addresses. Almost every foreigner in the Colony has sent in a response, and a very large proportion of leading Chinese and other residents have also filled in the forms.

in England to-day had given their services, thereby releasing men for the front. (Applause.)

Mr. R. Sutherland welcomed the ladies to the Club, and stated that Mr. Holyoak before he left handed him the telegram to be sent to His Majesty the King. The speaker went on to refer to the ties which bound the Colony to the King and Empire, and paid a graceful tribute to Sir William Rees Davies for his excellent speech, and to the Allied Consuls for their assurances.

At the Phoenix Club.

At noon to-day the members of the Phoenix Club gathered together in honour of Empire Day and drank the health of His Majesty the King. There was a good attendance of members, and after the toast had been most enthusiastically drunk, the National Anthem was sung.

THE BANDMAN SEASON.

"The Bing Boys are Here."

During its previous visit, the Bandman Opera Company made a great hit with its performance of "The Bing Boys are Here," a revue containing a fund of good humour, some exceedingly catchy and clever music, and quite an entertaining "story," and it was only to be expected that when the production was given again last evening there should be a large and appreciative audience. So it proved.

Mr. Fred Wino and Mr. Billy Rex were inimitable in the title roles, their humorous work being of the best, and causing roars of hearty laughter. They were ably assisted by Miss Addie Leigh, and most of the other principal members of the Company had solo work to perform. What was perhaps most popular of all was the street singing of Miss Roslyn and Messrs. Hodgson, Kellaway and Cohen, these four performers giving several really good quartettes. Mr. Compton Coult had several roles to fill in all of which he acted with ability. The delightful scenery and dances added to the enjoyment of the evening.

This evening the musical comedy, "The Girl from Oiro's," is being given.

League Tennis.

On Saturday, K.C.C. "B" meet the O.R.C. "B" at Causeway Bay at 4.15 p.m. The Kowloon team will be—C. W. Jeffries, L. J. Blackburn, C. J. Stapleton, J. Ralston, R. Anderson and R. H. Jewsbury.

Volunteer Reserve Orders.

Orders issued to-day by Major G. H. Wakeman, Commanding H.K.V.R., state:—All parades ordered for Friday, 25th inst., are cancelled. The lecture on Firing Instruction to Officers and N.C.O.s is postponed to Thursday, 31st May.

In Honour of Colonel Ward. R.H.K. GOLF CLUB.

Annual Meeting Last Evening.

There was a good attendance at the annual meeting of the Royal Hongkong Golf Club at Happy Valley yesterday, Mr. S. H.
Dodwell (Captain) presiding.

The Chairman said:—Gentlemen,—The report and accounts having been in your hands for some time I propose with your permission to take them as read. I think you will agree with me that, considering the circumstances, the report is a satisfactory
one. The profit for the year amounts to $4,271.29 against a loss of $2,541.71 last year, after writing off Fan Ling course and property $2,257.37 for account of the year 1916. In the sum of $13,336.96 for Fan Ling maintenance many items appear which in previous years have been treated as capital expenditure. The reserve account, which last year stood at $29,761.30, you will observe, has been utilized in writing down the Fan Ling property, plant, etc., nothing having been previously written off for depreciation since the course was laid out and the buildings erected.

With regard to the item Gun Club suspense account, I would explain that the Committee took over the Gun Club, lock, stock and barrel, including the Club House and cash balance, the latter being more than sufficient to pay for the removal of the Club house from Hongkong and its erection at Fan
Ling. When it was first put up,
I regret to say, it presented a serious blot on the landscape, which fortunately for us caught the eye of His Excellency the Governor, with the result that he very kindly defrayed the cost of beautifying it. (Applause). The upkeep and running expenses will cost the club a very small sum per annum, and when a normal supply of cartridges is obtainable I hope, gentlemen, you will patronise this new attraction.

The sincere thanks of the Club are further due to His Excellency the Governor and Mr. T. S. Forrest, who presented us with the handsome half-way pavilion, which was opened during the year and is a great improvement on the old shed we used to quench our thirst in. (Applause).

The Committee are of opinion that the present caddie system at Fan Ling, including the practice of stationing forecaddies round the course on busy days, although it created a little confusion at first, is a distinct improvement on the old methods, and I trust their opinion is shared by you all.

The alterations to the Club House at Deepwater Bay, I regret to say, have been somewhat protracted owing to circumstances over which we had no control, but they are now nearing completion and should greatly enhance the popularity of our picnic course.

I should like to express the thanks of the club to Mr. C. A.
Peel and Mr. W. D. Kraft, who acted as Honorary Secretaries during the temporary absence of Mr. Cumming. The Secretaryship of this club, gentlemen, is no bed of roses, as Mr. Cumming will tell you. During the regime of Mr.
Kraft the ladies dissociated themelves from us. I am certain they would not have taken this step had they known that Mr.
Cumming was returning. (Laughter). They now have their own Captain and Committee, and although their powers are necessarily limited, with the exception of the fixing of their own handicaps, I understand that perfect harmony prevails. (Laughter and applause). With those few remarks, gentlemen, I beg to propose the adoption of the report and accounts as presented.

Mr. E. V. D. Parr seconded.

On the motion of Mr. Parr, seconded by Mr. E. J. Grist, Mr.
Dodwell was re-elected Captain.

Proposed by the Chairman,
seconded by Mr. F. Maxwell, Mr.
K. M. Cumming was re-elected
Honorary Secretary.

The following Committee was then elected:—Mr. E. J. Grist, Hon. Secy.; Mr. E. B. Hallifax,
Hon. Secy.; Mr. W. D. Kraft, Hon. Secy.;
Mr. V. D. Parr and Mr. R. B. Robie, the three first named having been members of last year's Committee.
